Invitation

Presentation on Emotional Ownership and the Next Generation

29 September 2008

The Report

There is a bond between the next generation and the family business that can exist independently of financial ownership. We call it Emotional Ownership (EO). This report aims to analyse and explain the nature of EO, identifying what makes it stronger and what weakens it. The research is the first systematic investigation of these questions, drawing on a sample of over 600 next generation members from 67 countries. It is the only study of this size and breadth to date that represents the perspective of the next generation in family firms.

Speakers

Åsa Björnberg is the IFB Research Fellow for the Leadership in Family Business Research Initiative at London Business School. Her research focuses on family psychology, leadership and culture of family firms, and she has several publications on the topic. Åsa is also a bilingual executive coach, working with clients from organisations in both public and private sectors, specialising in family firms/offices.

Nigel Nicholson is Professor of Organizational Behaviour at London Business School (UK) where he is also the director of the Leadership in Family Business Research Initiative (LIFBRI). This major new initiative aspires to make London Business School one of the world's leading centres for the study of family business. He has published 18 books and monographs and over 180 articles on many aspects of business psychology, leadership and organization.

Clive Lewis is currently Deputy Chairman of River Island and Joint Managing Director of the Lewis Trust Group. He qualified as a barrister in 1979 and has spent his entire career with the Lewis Trust Group, a family owned UK company with four areas of business: retailing, real estate investment and development, hotels and finance.

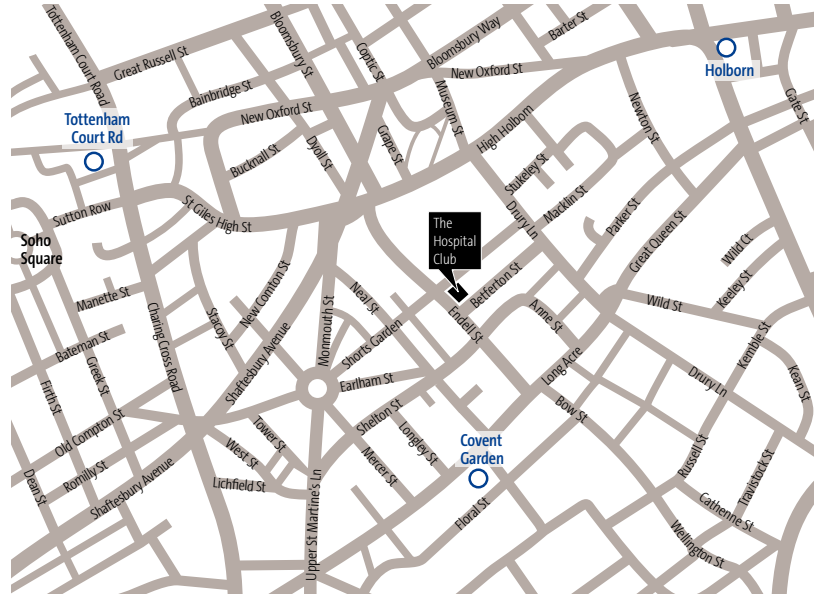

Lombard Odier Darier Hentsch has been a family business of private bankers for seven generations. A key ally of family businesses worldwide, the firm has long supported research in the field of family business.

The Institute for Family Business is a not-for-profit membership association which supports the UK family-owned business sector through Advocacy, Education and Research. For further information please visit www.ifb.org.uk.
